Enjoying the brand new cafe located in the library.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

The book symbolizes academic excellence and a respect for intellectual inquiry. Yes! Academics are important in college.

Manhattanville offers more than 45 undergraduate areas of study that range from sociology, women studies, art, to self-designed majors. Students are encouraged to explore the wide range of classes offered. In addition to great professors and classes, Manhattanville also has a strong support system to help students with academics outside of the classroom, such as the Academic Resource Programs and the Academic Resource Center.

However, as students, we all know that academic excellence could equal academic procrastination, such as trying to cram a semester's amount of work into several sleepless nights during finals week. Also trying to think of excuses to explain to Academic Advising why your portfolio is four months late, or counting up your absences of the semester to see if you could afford to take a class off to get that crucial power nap in before your eyes fall out of your head.

Maybe the name should be switched from academic excellence to academic procrastination. However, the end product after all the trouble, was worth it all in the end.

William's day is not complete until he works hard in the science lab.

Natalie with Hilda in the back are making sure they get their work done in the Brownson computer lab.

PERSONAL GROWTH

The sun signifies enlighment and development of the whole person, mind, body and spirit, in an atmosphere of responsible freedom.

College is the time when students grow from late adolescence to adults. The transitions are often challenging, yet the results are usually great. Coming in our first year, we think we know it all, but we soon find out that this is not the case. Freshman year is the first time, for most of us, that we are away from home, and no one is around to boss us around. We made mistakes and learned from them. We meet new people and went through new experiences. Also we acquired the skills to manage our time and rearrange our priorities. Together we grew as a group and continued to flourish as individuals.

As many of us think back to our first days at Manhattanville there are a lot of experiences we probably regret and wish to forget, for example the math and writing placement tests during orientation and your first roomate freshman year. However, without these experiences we would never have grown into the people we are today and could never appreciate the good times that happened and that will follow in the future.

The class of 2004 respond to the question: "How they have grown in the four years at Manhattanville College?"

"I learned to interact with people from different countries who have become my friends."
-Natalie Silva

"I know more about myself and my surroundings more than I did before."
-Jerry Joseph

-Alexandra

"I came to M'ville because I was able to get a college eduacation while being close to home and the city"
-Roma Samaroo

COMMUNITY

The star is a sign of Manhattanville's quest to build a nurturing and caring community. This is founded on mutual respect and personal accountability.

Diversity is the key to Manhattanville's community. Students come from all over the world. For such a small student body there are 53 different nations and 37 different states represented. Walking around campus is like touring the globe. Within a walk from Spellman to Brownson, a student can pass by her friend from Brooklyn, who is holding hands with her boyfriend from the Dominican Republic, who waves to his friend from France, while he is talking to his girlfriend from Washington D.C. On many college campuses this would not be found. This is what makes Manhattanville unique.

Together, as a diverse community, students work together in many clubs and organizations that help promote their culture. Clubs, such as ISO, BSU, LASO, Italian Club, Jewish Student Association, and the Gay/Straight Coalition, allow students to come together and educate others about their culture.

Being such a small campus with so many different people and backgrounds, one would think that there would be problems. However, at Manhattanville, students embrace each other and their differences .

In Lily's four years at Manhattanville she's been very involved with our community, especially her role in ISO.

"Because it is a small school and I like the one on one attention that I could receive from the professors" -Mary

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

The mountain represents our challenge to our students to make the world a better place through responsible social action.

Manhattanville as a school is highly ranked among other colleges. Manhattanville was named one of the nation's best institutions of higher education from the 2004 editions of America's leading college guidebooks, from Fiske, Princeton Review, Kaplan, and U.S. News & World Report.

Manhattanville has a very involved student body. Students organize and establish clubs, throw parties, set up workshops, poetry cafes, organize clothing drives, and volunteer in community service.

Together students accomplish a lot. Our athletics department has grown to include powerhouse teams in sports like men's and women's hockey, soccer and basketball. Our players have received individual honors from the ECAC and the NCAA.

Manhattanville is the home of the Duchense and Connie Hogarth Centers. Organizations like these help students become more socially aware and involved by holding Midnight Runs and protests.

Whether students accomplish awards, in the classroom, community or on the field, Manhattanville is filled with responsible, socially aware leaders who are willing to make a difference.

Jackie getting a lot of work done in the Brownson computer lab.

Good times working in the library.

200 NIGHTS

200 Nights is the time of year that everyone looks forward to. This is to count down the remaining nights until the graduate. This is also the annual Halloween party, where everyone gets to be young again and dresses up. During this party you will find people who go all out with their costumes and people who just come in jeans and a t-shirt. But there is one thing that is the same for everyone. EVERYONE HAS FUN!

"GROUND ZERO TO GRADUATION" FOR THE CLASS OF 2004

It all started with Orientation 2000. Do you remember using trays in the cafeteria? How "haunted" Spellman was? Preceptorial, having a group of 30 best friends, thinking there was no better time then a night at O'Briens or Soundfactory? Running through the halls at 4 a.m. because you could? The freshman homesickness stage? All the people who started first semester and never made it to be sophomores? All of your RANDOM HOOKUPS, and your very first Quad Jam?

After four years, all seniors can think about are their thesis, internships, portfolio, student teaching, and finding a job after graduation. If there is some extra time maybe they could get a drink at Club 21. Like the rocket nametags that stood on our door when we moved in as freshman we have blasted off and our lives and priorities have changed.

Along the way we have seen a lot happen such as: Bush was elected into office, the Subway Series, 9/11 tragedy, war protests and then eventually a War with Iraq. We also lost two of our fellow students last year, RIP Jason Massett and Roman David Jimenez Tonos.

Our experience at Manhattanville has been filled with good times and bad alike. After all the work, all the stress and all the confusion, we've become seniors. Although we are all transitioning on to bigger and better challenges of adulthood, we'll never forget the time of our lives at college. Congratulations to the class of 2004.

Danielle takes Val by surprise with a hug.

Neff, the knight in shining armor of Founders.

Right foot blue, now what are you going to do?

Which president is having more fun? Hector, the student government president or Berman?

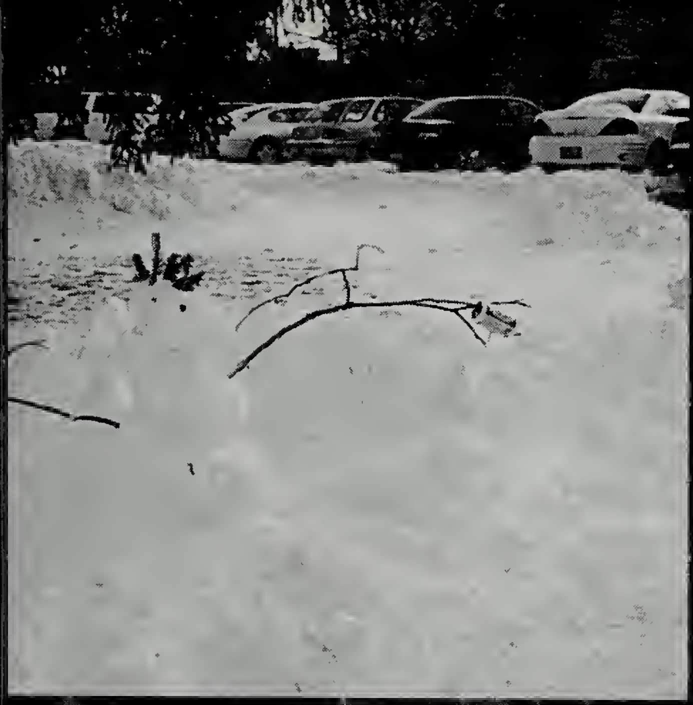
STUDENT LIFE

"Choose the way of life. Choose the way of love. Choose the way of caring... choose the way of goodness. It's up to you. It's your choice."

-Leo Buscaglia



Life at Manhattanville is full of challenges, physically and academically. From finishing a paper last minute to shoveling your car out during the numerous snow storms. The campus comes together during college events. Most students at Manhattanville do not hesitate to help a fellow student out. Our community is one of a kind.

STUDENT LIFE AT MANHATTANVILLE

Family Day and Homecoming

Manhattanville's first Annual Homecoming took place the weekend of September 19th and 20th. Among the events of the weekend were the Valiant Cup Soccer Tournament, fireworks on the quad, a cocktail reception and dinner with President Berman. Families and students also enjoyed theater trips to New York City to see Aida and Hairspray. Overall the weekend was a big hit with families, students, and alumni.

FALL JAM 2003

An annual Manhattanville tradition, Fall Jam is the first semester's all day party. This year, students participated in sumo wrestling, jostling, and other games on the quad, while being entertained by musical performances from various student DJs, a dance performance from Minds in Motion, and other performances. The night was topped of with fireworks and the "classic" after party thrown by the Junior Class. AND LETS NOT FORGET A WHOLE LOT OF DRINKING!

The night is young..these ladies are just getting started.

Manhattanville Valiants Red Madness 2003

On November 13, 2003 Manhattanville had a pep rally for all it's NCAA sports teams in the Kennedy Gymnasium. During Red Madness the students get introduced to all the athletes, enjoy performances from the Cheerleading Team and Minds in Motion. There are also games for prizes, giveaways, and good time for all. Let's not forget Paris' juggling act.

Fall Formal

December 2003

On the night of the first snow storm of the school year, students in heals and ties made it to the castle for the annual Fall Formal. No one let the bad weather bring them down.

Orientation:

From many - one.

The Freshman orientation consists of two parts: Phase I in June and Phase II in August. For each phase, returning students volunteer to be orientation advisors. They plan and work day and night preparing for the day the Freshmen arrive. Each orientation advisor is given a group of Freshmen to guide them into college life; from helping them choose their first semester of classes to taking their placement tests.

The Residence Life staff mans the registration tables for the Freshman to check-in to their first college dorm rooms - Spellman Hall.

The International Bazaar is an annual event started over twenty-five years ago. It is organized by ISO (International Student Organization) and the Office of International Student Services to celebrate the diversity of the Manhattanville campus. During the Bazaar there are performances by members of the community and an international fashion show.

For those who attend there are contests and prizes, including a grand prize announced at the end of the night. It is a Manhattanville tradition that brings people from different cultures together.

The cafeteria is closed on the night of the Bazaar. Everyone gathers in the East Room to get a taste of international cuisine and to enjoy the show. It is a fun and exciting night that the community looks forward to every year.

MEN'S ICE HOCKEY

One of Manhattanville's top sports, men's Ice Hockey always provides an exciting season for fans. With several big games already played and won, the Valiants look forward to success in the ECAC Tournament. On the ice they are led by several key seniors; Michael Camarinos, Dave Schmalenberg, Dennis McNally, Sean Keane, and Chad Killam. The Valiants are always at the top of the rankings in the NCAA Division III. The Valiants play and practice at Rye Playland Ice Casino, the former practice rink of the New York Rangers. With loyal fans behind them, the Valiants can beat anyone at anytime when taking the ice.

In memory of Rachel Elaine Sutherland

"Why did You, take her Lord while she was still so young?
Her time on earth has been so short, so much she hasn't done.

When the last time that we saw her, we didn't know it then.
That we would never have the chance to talk with her again.
To tell how much we loved her, to give one last embrace,
To take one last moment to look upon her face

Help us to remember not to live our life too fast.
Because we never know which day may be our very last.
And realize that a life is not measured by the years
That someone lives here on earth but by the love they give."

On March 6, 2004 Rachel Elaine Sutherland passed away in a car accident in Georgia while traveling with friends to spring break. Rachel, a freshman, was an international politics and psychology major and a Board of Trustees scholar. We will always remember her in our hearts.

Jennifer Michele Janap

Dear Jennifer,

Jennifer you mean so much to us. We love you not just because you are our daughter, but aslo because you are a very special person. We have such confidence and faith that you will be able to acheive anything you want, and be a success at whatever you try. That is why we hope you never stop dreaming. We have always been so proud of you not only for your personal accomplishments, but aslo for what you add to the family. Now that you are graduating with all you've accomplished and the wisdom you've gained, you have so many reasons to be proud. You made us very proud of you, and may all your dreams come true.

Love always,
Mom & George

Dear Sweetheart,

So you are graduating college and that is a very big accomplishment, and I want to let you know how proud of you I am. You have taken on many responsibilities and yet you still never lost sight of your goals. You already know how proud of you I am, now let me tell you how much I love you. We have been through a lot in four years but I know with you by my side we can conquer anything. I am a better person since you came into my life and you showed me how to live life and enjoy it at the same time. You mean the world to me and there is nothing that I wouldn't do for you. As a person you take many roles; as a wonder girlfriend, loving daughter, devoted grand-daughter, and most of all an all around perfect woman. I know that you will be successful in this world because you are a very unique and dedicated person. So let me once again congratulate you on graduating from college and most of all thank you for being a very special woman in my life.

Love always,
Joey

DearJennifer,

One of the greatest gifts in lif is having grandchildren. And I'v been blessed with having wonderful granddaughter, Jennife who has made me so proud. She' been a joy from the moment she wa born. She's given me so muc happiness. When Jennife graduates, I'll be so proud of her an her accomplishments. I love her fo the person she is and I know I'll lov her for the person she becomes. thank God for my granddaughte Jennifer.

Love always,
Grandpa

Dear Jennifer,

Well, if you want to read about a disappointing, lazy, nasty, and self-centered perso then read no further.

I was asked to write a little something about Jennifer, my daughter, and this is going t be a very hard task for me. If I am to write about my daughter, I will need volumes of space t express what I feel about her.

To start, how about this? She is the first person in our family to graduate college. Bu you may say that is not such a big deal. Well I beg to differ. You see for Jen to get this far in lif she wasn't always traveling on a smooth road. She was not born with a silver spoon in he mouth nor did she have the most perfect situation growing up. But from a little child, she was winner.

Well you may say that this is not so unique, and you might be right. To me, as her dad she is the most unique person in the world, and that is my inherent right to feel that way.

You read the first line of my little story here. Now I started like that only becaus Jennifer is so opposite of that, and it cannot be totally accurately attested to in the space that have. Because if I was to write all that I am proud of, and how much I love my daughter an what she means to me, nobody else would have room to write anything.

I know that all of you dads out there feel the same way that I do about your child. An I am so grateful that I am one of you.

Jen I know that you are aware of how proud of you I am, and I'm glad that God chos me to be your father. I LOVE YOU, more than you'll ever know.

Love always and forever,
Dad

Bia,
Menininha do meu coração eu só quero voce a tres palmos do chão menininha não cresça mais não fique pequenininha no meu caração senhorinha levada batendo palminha fingindo assustada do bicho papão menininha que graça é voce uma coisinha assim começando a viver fique assim meu amor sem crescer e se lembre de mim quando voce souber emfim o quanto eu te amei. Isso era o que o papai pensava quando voce nasceu e hoje vejo que alem da poesia existe esta realidade de uma mulher feita, com um futuro brilhante pela frente. Parabens meu amor por chegar ao fim de mais uma etapa de sua vida com sucesso.

Te amo,
Papai

Oi mae, you don't believe how proud I'm of you! I REALLY knew that you were going to reach what you wanted: with your personality, your hustle, your love...you deserve this day, specially being in a foreign country (was not easy right?) BUT YOU MADE IT!!! Bia, tenho certeza do seu sucesso e da sua na segunda. Nao se esqueca que voce (e o Jooao) sao as pessoas mais importantes para mim, e que em qualquer momento e em qualquer situacao eu estarei SEMPRE ao seu lado!

Te amo meu amor!
Mamae

Bia, thank you for being the best sister one could ask for. No matter what the situation is or what your opinion on it is you are always there for me. Estou orgulhoso de voce e espero que todo de bom te aconteca. Bejos e sortena vida.

"Success is best measured by how far you've come with the talents you've been given." -Anon

To our darling daughter Danielle,

It seems like in a flash of a moment your college yeras went by and now you are graduating! We have watched you blossom into a beautiful young woman who we are very proud to call our daughter!

We are so proud of you Danielle and all that you have accomplished. You are truly an extraordinary person and as parents we couldn't be any prouder! With each passing year you showed what determination, perserverance and dedication can do! You are a talented, caring, passionate person with a very strong character that is unsurpassed. These qualities will always be with you because they are genuine. Something that is genuine comes from within your being and those quaities make you the very special person that you are. Your college years went by so quickly and we must say you did all four years with style, grace, and charisma!

Congratulations sweetie! The world is a much better place with you in it! We love you so much.

Always & Forever
Mom and Dad

Danielle, you are the most determined person that I know. I admire you so much and am so thankful to have a best friend and a sister in one! Good luck to you on what's ahead. Remember just call my name and you know that I will ALWAYS be there!

Love always,

Our Saviours, St. Anselms, St. Saviour and now,
A Manhattanville grad, who could be more proud?
From Bay Ridge to Purchase you've come a long way,
We love you a lot, what more can we say?
You are "berry" special and always will be,
So what's in your future? No one can see.
May the Angels watch over wherever you go
And now to the world yourself you will show.
Be safe and be happy and never forget...
It's about what you give and not what you get.

From the people who love you the most,
Patsy, Marge, LeeLee, and the Baby.

Christina Alexis Horman

Dearest, Christina,

Another milestone is passing and we grow increasingly proud of you. You have matured into a bright, beautiful and responsible adult well prepared to enter your next stage in life. Ephesians 3:20
~Dad~

I'm so proud of you dear sister, you've been such an inspiration to me. Congratulations on achieving a respectable college degree. But remember the battle's not over, and continue to put your trust in God. Know that all things work together, for the good of those who love the Lord.

I love you and may God continue to bless you.
~Rach~

When I'm with you, I forget about the world. Pain, suffering, means nothing to me. Cause you are the most exciting book I ever opened, And I'll make sure it never gets closed. As every one of your endless stories become every one of my moments, our moments.

I love you!
~Stinky~

Sara Lisa Enea

Dear Sara Lisa,
These last four years have gone so fast! Now the real job begins. We want to wish you the very best for your future. What ever goals you'll set for yourself, we will always be behind you, pulling for you, every step of the way! We are very proud of your accomplishments and we are confident that you'll continue to strive for the very best. Remember, if you set your goals to the highest, you can reach the moon, but if you should fall short, you will be among the stars!

With much love and affection,

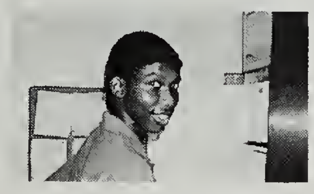
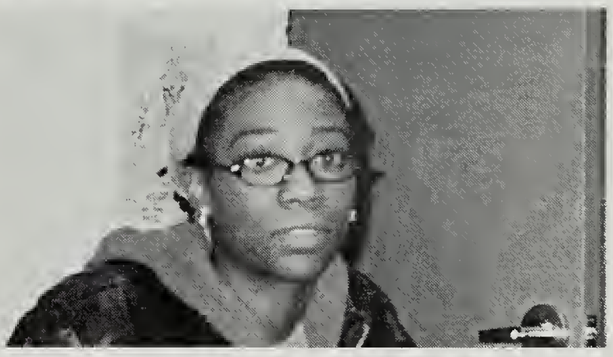
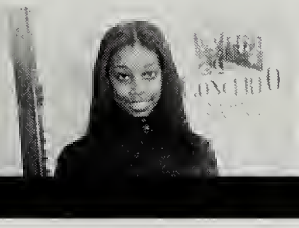
Lorraine, I can't tell you how much I admire you. So vibrant, wise, and beautiful; you have shaped the young woman I've become and who I aspire to be.



My mommy... what can I say to sum up what you mean to me? You are without a doubt the strongest woman I know. I hope I've made you proud.



P.S. Thanks to all the people who have supported me along this journey. Some are pictured here but there are so many more... Mr. Reid, Sandra, the Marks family...



To the most important man in my life, Evan I wish nothing but the best for you.

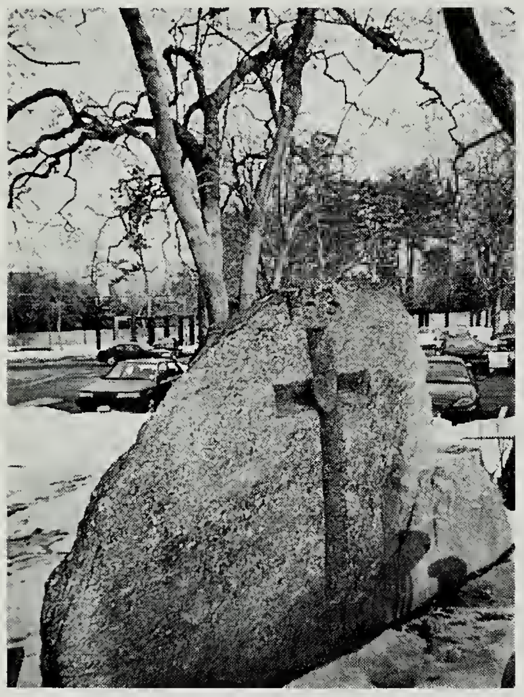
Manhattanville's History and Legacy

The grounds on which Reid hall stands today can be traced back to 1661, when Chief Shanarocke of the Siwanoy Indians (a branch of the Mohegans) turned the land over to John Budd of Southold, Long Island. Toward the end of the 17th century, another Indian, Pathungo, reclaimed the land and passed it on to John Harrison of Flushing, Queens, for 40 pounds. Harrison filed a claim and an official patent was granted for the land, which became known as Harrison's "Purchase"– the name given it by a band of Quakers who settled in the area during the early 1700's



1864 In 1864, Ben Holladay bought 1,000 acres in the area and began to build the marble halls of his mansion on the wooded countryside. He called his estate Ophir Farm, name after the Ophir Silver Mine in Virginia City, Nevada, which he partially owned. His wife Ann, began to seek "Old World" nobility, she decided to build a small chapel on the property for her family. Located beneath the Chapel, which was designed in Norman Gothic style, was the vault. About a half-mile away from the mansion, towards Westchester Avenue, a natural boulder was set up midway along the carriage drive. On it was carved a cross with a heart at the center. Today, the Chapel remains in place near Purchase Street. The boulder is located opposite the southeast corner of the Benziger Building. On the day Ann died in 1873, the first great economic panic of the 19th century hit the country like a wave. As she was buried in her wooded refuge, Ben Holladay watched his empire fall in one day's stock collapse. A huge financial burden, his mansion was put up for public sale.

1883 For the span of about ten years, the estate deteriorated before a new owner was found. John Roach, the shipbuilder who constructed the Monitor for Union, already had an empire by the time he came to the Westchester hills. He never actually lived on the estate, or in the old house, for he was waiting for the completion of an important business deal before restoring Ophir place. Following the pattern of the Holladay misfortune, Roach lost his empire and the home became a financial burden, which cost him his health. He died leaving his debts and the estate to his son Garret who immediately put the estate up for public auction, where it attracted its third owner.

1888 Ben Holladay's Ophir Farm, in 1888, became the country estate of Whitelaw Reid, owner of The New York Tribune. It would become the first home in the Weschester area to be equipped with both telephone and electric wiring. The work was going smoothly when disaster struck. On July 14, 1888, only a month before the Reids were scheduled to move in, a blaze caused by a short circuit swept through the house. Within a few hours, the mansion was in ruins. Coincidentally, that same month, the main building of the Manhattanville campus, then located on Convent Avenue in New York City, was almost completely destroyed by fire. The Reids decided to rebuild on a greater and grander scale than before. Using stone quarried on the estate for the construction, the firm of Mckim, Mead, & White was commissioned to assist in the plans.

MANHATTANVILLE

1892 Shortly after, Reid decided to expand his home and he was named Ambassador to England. Once again, work on the estate was directed from abroad as, the West Wing and Jacobean Corridor were constructed. The 75-year-old diplomat's health had become very strained. On December 15, 1912, he died from a respiratory infection bringing to a close another phase of the Mansion's history. Mrs. Reid however, remained active in the affairs of her community and her nation, and Ophir Hall reflected her energetic pace. One of Mrs. Reid's most ardent causes was the Red Cross. During World War I, she found a new purpose for the American Art student's club, which she had established in Paris during her husband's assignment as Ambassador. Reopened in 1930 at Ophir Hall, it became the center for American University women in Paris. Through all these years, Ophir Hall was the scene of much activity, including visits by prominent individuals, young and old, from business, government, the arts, and the world of sports.

1931 On board the S.S. Leviathan, she contracted a cold which, two weeks later, turned into pneumonia. At the age of 73, she died while visiting her daughter's villa near Nice. With Mrs. Reid's death, the doors of Ophir Hall were closed once again. In 1947, when Ogden Reid died, the financial burden of maintaining such an extensive property became apparent once again, and plans were launched to place much of it on the market.

1949 Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart, located in New York City since 1841, purchased 250 acres of the estate in 1949. Deliberations concerning specific plans for the new campus were carried on by faculty department chairpeople, who were asked to assist in designing the new Academic and Music Buidling and the Library. Mother O'Byrne herself contributed enormously in term of both ideas and leadership. On May 3, 1951, groundbreaking ceremonies were held on the quiet rolling hills of the estate. In an incredibly short time, less than a year-and-a- half, the monumental effort of building a new campus and physically moving furniture, equipment, hundreds of documents and thousands of books was completed. In September 1952, as five college buildings were opened, the Castle and Manhattanville College entered a new phase of history together. Throughout these early years in Purchase, Mother O'Byrne continued to expand the college's horizons, both physically and academically. A professor of history, who served as dean of college for 11 years before becoming its president in 1945, Mother O'Byrne was one of the first women to play a leading role in such educational organizations as the Middle States Association. On campus, the chapel, three dormitories (Dammann, Tenney, and Spellman), and the Kennedy Gymnasium were added and Ophir hall was refurbished to serve as the college's administrative center.

1969 In 1969, the castle, originally known as Ophir Hall, was renamed Reid Hall. Five years later, on March 22, 1974, the U.S. Department of the Interior placed Reid Hall on the National Register of Historic Places in recognition of its historical and architectural significance. Following in the footsteps of the Cultural Revolution, Manhattanville became non denominational in the late 1960s and co-educational in 1971. In 1972, the college adopted a new undergraduate program of study, called the Portfolio System, working under a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

1995 In February of 1995, Richard A. Berman became Manhattanville's 10t president and began a remarkable turnaround that would make the college the lively and thriving community Holladay, Reid, and O'Byrne had envisioned in their lifetimes. Under Berman's spirited leadership the school was transformed academically and financially into a prospering and well respected institution. Enrollment increased dramatically and U.S. News and World Report ranked the school among the top dozen most diverse colleges in the nation. Following President Berman's appointment, Manhattanville made significant investments in technology, and continues to do so today. In 1999, the class of '66, donated $1 million to establish a library enrichment fund. In 2000, the school endowed a faculty chair, the Ryan-Bacardi Chair in Economics, thanks to a $1 million contribution from Sergio Danguillecourt '90.

Today Today, Manhattanville is a thriving global community of 1,500 undergraduate and 1,000 graduate students from 47 countries and 32 states. Over the past five years, average SAT scores have risen 160 points, and a record number of incoming students have been in the top third of their high school graduating class. Since the groundbreaking ceremonies in 1951, Manhattanville has been filling needs undreamed of by Ben Holladay and Whitelaw Reid. Reid Hall, the center of this tradition-steeped community and the values that it represents, continues to uphold the spirit of these two extraordinary men. Leaders in global community, Holladay and Reid were creative and forward-thinking men who appreciated the arts and nature while balancing social responsibility in their daily lives. Today, Manhattanville's mission is to "educate students to become ethically and socially responsible leaders and creative thinkers in both their careers and personal lives." Students are encouraged to be independent leaders and creative thinkers in both their careers and personal lives. These values are brought to life everyday in the classrooms, dorms, athletic fields, and community beyond the doors of Reid Hall.

PAST FOUR YEARS AT MANHATTANVILLE

Reflecting back on our four years at Manhattanville
a lot has happened here and in the world.

Where were you when:

- Sniper Case?
- The tragedy of 9/11 occurred?
- During the Blackout?
- The end of Sex in the City?
- The Subway Series?
- The "War on Terrorism Began"?
- The Breasty Superbowl?
- Forest Fires all over the place!?!
- The first American Idol and the reality television boom?
- When President Bush got elected? Or did he really?
- Brintney and Justin broke up? Benniffer too?
- Aaliyah's plane crashed? Barry White, Bob Hope and John Ritter died?
- Michael Jackson, Martha Stewart and Enron officials arrested? What a combination!

In Mville do you remember?

- When you couldn't drink in the pub?
- When you fell on the Quad? (We all have)
- Ground Zero (OA)?
- Movies and Ice cream Truck on the mini quad?
- Your first Quad Jam?
- When you could smoke in Spellman, Damman and Tenney?
- How long it took to get a sandwich in the Pitt?
- You're first roommate?
- The first Club 21.
- Having Meal Plan A and no pub cash!
- Toni Smith Controversy? When Manhattanville was a media hotspot?
- When you can have guests on this campus without a headache?
- When some of our fellow classmates had to leave to go to war?
- First formal and wearing your prom dress?
- Turning 21?
- 200 nights? 100 Nights? 50 Nights? Any night?
- Spring Breaks?
- Wanting to Transfer?
- Numerous fire alarms in the middle of the night?
- The rumors at rumorville?

"I have this great experience in the success of you, my children."

The 2004 Tower Yearbook is dedicated to Mr. Uriel Reid

To you Uriel Reid is probably a friendly face and a warm hug when you need it the most. However, have you ever wondered how he came to Manhattanville? Mr. Reid was born in St. Vincent's Hospital on the lovely island of Manhattan. He has been married for 35 years and has three children. His mother is from St. Croix (US Virgin Islands) and his father is from Antigua. Because of his heritage, he claims to be either "an antique Crucian or a Crucian antique."

He attended elementary school in both Harlem (PS. 170) and Chelsea (PS.11). His high school Haaren HS is no longer a school, but the building forms the annex of the John Jay School of Law. After high school, he went on to receive his airframe and license from the Academy of Aeronautics (now called the College of Aeronautics). Upon graduation, he began working at Republic Aviation and remained there for four years while attending night classes at City College. It was from City College that he received his BS in Computer Science from the School of Engineering. Then he started working at IBM where he remained for 32 years before finally coming to Manhattanville College where he has been for over 12 years.

He came to Manhattanville after a good friend of his asked him if he would be a counselor for a new program that was started at Manhattanville called STEP. He agreed and began volunteer work with high school students that would come to the college. He asked God to guide him to a decision for what he wanted to do, it was at that time that he realized that he wanted to work with young people. Two weeks before he was going to retire from IBM, Judith Socolow called and asked Mr. Reid if he would like to work for Manhattanville. Thinking this to be his opportunity to work with kids, he said yes without knowing the exact details of the job. It turns out that he was asked to be a counselor for CSTEP, a teacher and advisor to STEP. He began working part time but eventually was made a full-time employee.

His best memory was the march to Washington in 1957. "It made me more aware of things that were happening. I realized that I was right in the midst of injustices that were taking place." The thing Mr. Reid enjoys most about his job is working with students and watching them come in as freshmen and leave as empowered seniors.
